Our Green Projects

At Barbelyn, sustainability is not just a practice—it's part of who we are. From nurturing traditional methods to pioneering new eco-friendly solutions, our ongoing projects highlight our commitment to a greener, more self-sufficient future.

Coconut treacle making

We've embraced the art of traditional coconut treacle production chemical-free, locally sourced, and sustainably crafted. This not only supports local artisans but preserves age-old techniques passed down through generations.

Rooftop garden

Our rooftop garden brings nature to new heights! Grown with care, it supplies fresh herbs and vegetables to our kitchens while reducing building heat and enhancing biodiversity. It's a living example of how urban spaces can thrive sustainably.

Yam project

With a deep respect for native crops, our yam cultivation project strengthens food resilience and promotes biodiversity. These hardy, nutritious roots are grown organically and celebrated as a sustainable food source.

Bee honey production

Bees are the heartbeat of biodiversity. Our eco-friendly beekeeping initiative not only yields pure, medicinal-grade honey but also supports local flora through natural pollination, creating harmony between health and habitat.

Beach cleaning programs

Our regular beach clean-ups bring the community together to protect marine life and coastal beauty. These programs serve as reminders that every small act of care can create big waves of change for our oceans.

Building Green— Sustainable Design at Barbelyn

At Barbelyn, sustainability is built into our very foundations—literally. Our resort's design reflects a deep respect for the environment, incorporating green building principles that conserve resources, reduce our carbon footprint, and enhance guest well-being. Here are some of the highlights:

Waste Management Practices

Our comprehensive waste management program includes upcycling, composting, and reducing single-use plastics. We strive to minimize waste and promote a cleaner environment.

Rainwater Harvesting

Our rainwater collection systems reduce water waste and support landscape irrigation, especially during dry months.

Eco – Friendly Materials

We prioritize the use of local, sustainable, and non-toxic construction materials, preserving cultural identity while minimizing environmental impact.

Natural Ventilation & Lighting

Our buildings are designed to harness cross-ventilation and maximize natural daylight, reducing the need for artificial cooling and lighting.

Solar Energy Integration

Where possible, solar panels are used to supplement energy needs, reducing reliance on fossil fuels.

Energy-Efficient Lighting

We use energy-efficient LED lighting across the resort, which reduces energy consumption and provides a comfortable ambiance for our guests.
